African Pilot's tour to AAD 2008

Due to the fact that African Pilot will become very involved in the build-up for Africa Aerospace and Defence 2008 exhibition over a five day period during the third week of September next year, it is starting to plan for special deals for up-country visitors to Cape Town. One of the ideas is to charter a Skyclass DC-4 with fifty seats to fly to Cape Town from Johannesburg on Wednesday 17 September, and return on Sunday 21 September after the airshow. Land arrangements will be handled by Neil Bowden of Air Adventure Tours in the most economical manner possible. Africa Aerospace and Defence 2008 will have three trade days, being the Wednesday to Friday and two public days on Saturday and Sunday. For further information on this opportunity to fly to Cape Town and return on a classic airliner, please visit the Skyclass Website: www.flyskyclass.com

There is a plan is to provide a large static area for the exhibition of all aircraft types that fall into the 'Light Sport Aircraft' category. This will provide an opportunity for pilots who are interested in viewing the types that are currently on the market to come and see all aircraft types currently being imported or manufactured in South Africa in one place and at one venue. The exhibition owners are working on an exciting deal where the marketers of LSA aircraft will be provided with the necessary display areas and ground based equipment to secure their products.
